

ABSTRACT

A new and distinct variety of peach, Prunus persica, tree having the following unique combination of desirable features:

- The new and distinct variety of peach tree is of average height and of upright growth and a regular and productive bearer of peaches.
- 2. Producing a very firm fruit having a resilient flesh texture.
- 3. Blossoms are non-showy when in full bloom.
- A substantially oval spherical fruit with skin of dark red cover overlying a yellow which covers approximately twenty percent (20%) of its surface at maturity.
- 5. When harvested, the peduncle often remains affixed to the pit.
- 6. Late maturing fruit of good taste.
- 7. A late maturing fruit of good storage and shelf life.

12 Drawing Sheets